Evaluation of 3D Game to teach Business Ethics

A computer game to help in the teaching of Business Ethics has been developed by the University of Roehampton in association with ORT France. We wish to obtain student feedback and ideas in terms of a) the functionality and effectiveness of the game itself in developing ethical decision-making skills and b) best approaches in integrating the game within an ethics module. The research involves approximately 500+ undergraduates across business schools in the UK and overseas. Two forms of data will be collected from the game a) in-game responses and b) a survey at the end to record overall experience. We wish to stress that you do not have to be involved in the research to play the game and if you choose not to have your data used (by un-ticking the box below) this will not impact on your learning experience or course mark in anyway. If you choose to allow us to use your responses (which will be kept completely confidential) we would like to thank you for your help in helping us improve the game and contribute to pedagogic research.

I agree to take part in this research, and am aware that I am free to withdraw at any point (simply by closing the browser window) without giving a reason, although if I do so I understand that my data might still be used in a collated form. I understand that the information I provide will be treated in confidence by the investigator and that my identity will be protected in the publication of any findings, and that data will be collected and processed in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998 and with the University's Data Protection Policy. I confirm that I am over 18 years of age.
